generation

– a group of individuals living at the same stage of time, who all have a common cultural or social attribute–so what was the attribute of our generation? Could it have been our attitudes, our style, or was it our individuality? What kind of path did we build for the next generation? We were the leaders and role models for our tomorrow. The world was ours to start forming...

Participating in the framing of the school's building trades house, junior Brent Harvey nails a double top plate. Fourteen juniors and 21 seniors participated in the building of the house. The 1,900 square foot house will be sold at the end of the year for the price of $100,000.

Mr. Harry Wiseman announced that he was retiring from his position on December 10th to spend more time with his family. A long-time employee of Warren Central, Wiseman, former head-custodian, began his career in 1975. After retiring from that position, Wiseman remained at the school supervising the halls and cafeteria, attending games and chaperoning events. Harry was a good friend to students and faculty alike.

School was much more than classes and grades. It was about being involved. It was about meeting friends, going to games, making your mark. It was about having fun.

This year was full of ups and downs. We had our wins and our losses, but through it all we had our pride. We took chances and we made a difference. Did you take a chance? If you didn't, do it now.

This is it. Your year. Maybe it was your freshman year, or your senior. No matter. This year was unique. It ended with the graduation of the first class that walked the halls as freshmen. It began with the passing of two of the most famous women in the world, Princess Diana and Mother Theresa. This year had it's own styles, issues, and people. What was different? Everything. This year we got our groove on to Puff Daddy and Jewel. This year we spent $50 on an Eddie Bauer shirt. This year we went through the pain of losing friends. So here it is--what you thought about, who you knew, what you did, where you went--everything. Just another year--a year that, with a little help from us, you will never forget.

your LIFE has more to it than school

by Vicki Oliver

Think back to the last time you were in Washington Square (come on, admit it, you were there)—what did you see? That's right, Warren students everywhere. Besides just shopping and hanging out, students also got their cash by working at places like Baskin Robbins, Fannie May, The Depot, Sears, Man Alive, and B. Dalton's. And that's just at the mall. So what does this prove? That students do have a life outside of school. Sure, we spend a lot of time there, but that's not all there is. So, with so many things to choose from, what did you do with your free-time?

While school wasn't the only thing, for some people it seemed like it was. Ask anybody who was in the band. "For marching season I'm usually in band. We have two-and-a-half hours of practice each day, except for Fridays, when we have games. I usually don't plan on seeing my friends ever unless they're in band," said junior Hilary Mullins.

There were also other ways to get involved. With over twenty sports and over twenty clubs and organizations to offer, Warren kept it's students plenty busy if they were willing. But some people didn't need school to keep them busy; their jobs did that for them.

"I work a lot of the time, but I'd rather be with my friends. I usually have one day a week where I don't have school or work," said junior Katy Larner. While loss of free-time was the down side, many students found that jobs were a necessity.

Sophomore Christy Randall said, "I have two jobs; I work at

NOW Generation

by Amanda Johnson

The times were changing. Events happened all around the world that affected not just a few people, but everyone. And we had to adapt. We had to make this our generation; do things that hadn't been done before.

Nate Wagner

We did things our way. We had more information to help us do what we wanted. We got along better with one another; we looked beyond the color of skin.

Maybe history really does repeat itself. Eventually. But what if we aren't here to witness it? We had the chance to make our own history; our generation was now. And who knows? Maybe what we did today will one day be repeated. It was all up to us.

Freetime? What freetime? Chris Kingery (left) and Luke Burgin have some fun while working at Steak & Ale. Many students found freetime was scarce when involved with jobs and other activites. Below, Michelle Henning is just one of over one hundred band members giving up a Friday night to perform at a home game.

5-7-9 and at an art gallery. I wish I didn't have to, but I need the money for car insurance."

Besides the cost of having a car, students also had to buy things like clothes and CD's, not to mention buying student council sweatshirts, prom tickets, and, of course, the yearbook. With so many things to buy, sacrificing free-time was a choice many made. Of course, there were also those who took it easy for a while.

"I go to movies, hang out with my friends. We usually go to one of our houses to just chill and talk. The most important thing right now is definitely going to be my friends," said senior Mary Painter.

For those who could afford it, hanging out with friends was a good way to relax and get away from the responsibilities of school. "I spend a lot of time with my friends," said senior Steven Sodds. "I also like to hunt. It relaxes me and gets rid of any pressure I might have. The most important thing to me is helping my friends out with their problems and making them laugh."

Whether it was by joining the work force or being a consumer, improving the school or helping a friend, Warren students definitely played a big part in their world, inside of the school and out.

Where did you go? Where were your favorite places to be, and, while you were there, what did you spend?

1. The Mall:
This was the most popular hang-out, whether it was Castleton to shop or Circle Centre to drool over the expensive clothes and wish. Depending on which mall they chose, and what they were shopping for, students spent anywhere from $0-$100+.

2. The Movies:
Just like every other year, '98 had it's share of huge movies, including Men in Black, Soul Food, Scream 2, and Titanic, so the theatre was the place to be. An evening movie at most theatres cost around $7.50; add at least another $5 for food. However, the thrifty could save by going to Movies 8 for a cool $1.50 (of course, that's without the $7 popcorn).

3. Downtown:
Chilling on the circle and checking out the sights was a cheap way to have some fun for many students. Downtown offered a lot to do, like shopping, eating (especially with the added feature of a new Planet Hollywood), ice skating, and just plain ol' wandering around. And the cost? Well, an average meal at a better-than-average restaurant was about $10-15, and, depending on where you shopped, you could tack on anywhere from $10 - $100+.

4. Broadripple:
It's like downtown, only... cooler. Broadripple was also a place where students could hang out and choose from a huge variety of restaurants and shops. Depending on whether they wanted to hang out or really get some shopping done, a trip to Broadripple cost anywhere from $0 - 100+.

5. Paintball:
It's painful, it's expensive ... but it's also really popular. Facilities around Indy like Dark Armies and The Splatter Zone offeredstudents a chance to let out a little stress with an automatic weapon, and safely at that. Costs ranged from $30-60 depending on where they went and what kind of equiptment they used; an average two-hour session was about $25, with gun upgrades costing from $10-30.

What does Fashion Mean to any of us?

mean to you?

"Fashion is what people decide to wear. Fashion is very important to me for several reasons. I get to express myself, and I pretty much dress like most of my friends. The clothes I wear aren't binding though; I pretty much stick to comfy threads."
- Jessica Clark, 10

"Fashion is looking good. Fashion is also a good way to express your personality and your opinions."
- Adam Fisher, 10

"Fashion is a bunch of people worrying and stressing about how they look, not because they care themselves, but because they are worried about what other people will think of them."
- Melanie Schultz, 12

By Vicki Oliver

Well, in general it means what you wear and how you do your hair. Things like that. Sure, but what does it really mean? How important is it to you?

Whether you like it or not, fashion can be very important. It can determine who your friends are, who you date - basically, fashion can play a big part in how popular you are. This may not always be fair, but today it is definitely true.

Why is this? Because in high school, first impressions mean a lot. "It is unfair to judge people by fashion, but that is the first thing a person sees. Unfortunately, everyone has probably judged someone by what they were wearing," said junior Kisha Keeney. Imagine this. You're walking down the hall and you see somebody wearing . . . a plaid shirt, striped pants, and a hat with a feather in it. Now you may not know this guy, but you certainly get a few ideas about him from what he's wearing. Whether those ideas are bad or good depends on you.

There are always those who say that fashion doesn't matter to them; that they would never judge somebody like that. This, however, cannot stop them from being judged by others.

So if fashion is only good for labeling people into groups, why don't we just all wear uniforms (a question the school board has, no doubt, posed many times)? Because fashion had its good parts too. Without the freedom to dress the way they want, some people would lose a major part of their personality. Many people used the way they dressed to express themselves.

"I usually don't hold fashion in as high a regard as most, but I try to dress in a way that I find appealing, so I guess it is to 'express' my individuality.' I like to dress my part for each day," said senior Jill Lakin.

Take, for example, that guy with the feather in his hat. Maybe you wouldn't be caught dead with that on, but he's happy with what he's wearing. Maybe he's trying to say, "Hey, I don't conform to other people's standards." Or maybe he just really likes Yankie Doodle. Either way, who are we to stop him from expressing himself?

And what was 'in' at Warren this year? "Diversity," said senior Mike Brooks. "There's the prep look, relaxed casual look, the dirty blue jeans and jersey look, and the everday look."From expensive sweaters and cargo pants to goodwill bargains and Marilyn Manson T-shirts, Warren students covered the whole spectrum of fashion trends.

Do these styles look familiar to you? Well, they should, because these were some of the most popular trends at Warren. Although styles weren't all that different from each other, students all put a piece of their personality into what they wore.

...adolescent Attitudes

...on November 17th, nine students gathered to discuss...

LeighAnn Webb, 12

Josh Kimberlin, 12

Jade [illegible]son, 11

Jerome Towner, 11

Question #1: Do you feel that teens today have an attitude about themselves that they are invincible? Why is this, and where does this attitude come from?

Jerome: Yes, I believe that teens have an attitude like that. It's the things you see on T.V. that affect you a lot, the violence, the drugs and stuff make people want to be like that. It makes people want to show that they're stronger and basically better than others and then things get started.

Colette: Right now you're so young that you don't think about death as much because you're not old. You think you're an exception to the rule, that the young don't die. You don't really worry about death at an early age as much.

Leigh Ann: I just believe that we think that we're invincible because these are supposed to be the best times of our lives, and we're trying to live in the now and not worry about tommorrow. That's why we do some things that we know might not necessarily have good consequences. We're like, who cares we're here to have fun right now. We'll deal with the consequences later.

Anne: I agree with Leigh Ann. I think that we start experimenting with stuff

" As you are growing up, you are with your family and friends, and as you get older you think that you are an adult so you pull away from your parents and try to show your friends that you are independant."

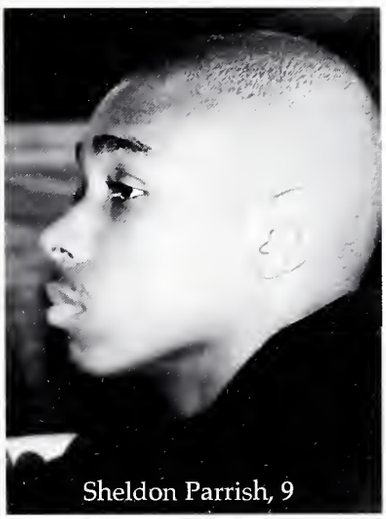
-Jerome Towner-

"It couldn't happen to me." Such a short phrase, but one heavy with consequences. Whether referring to death, drug abuse, diseases, or other frightening realities, tragedy strikes eventually. When it does, it leaves most teens wondering if it truly could happen to us. How untouchable are we really?

Anne Knoop, 12

Coleta Armstrong, 11

Steven Vaughn, 10



Sheldon Parrish, 9

and it makes you feel good, so you start doing it more and more. As long as you're getting away with it you don't think you're doing anything wrong. However, eventually you're gonna get caught or killed or something.

Leigh Ann: Right now you and your parents are having a power struggle, and usually you do bad stuff to say ha ha, I just did this and my mom can't stop me, I have more power over her, she can't control my life.

Question #2: How would you describe our generation?

Jerome: Free spirited. We try everything, we do everything, but there's little thought of death. It's all about now.

Steve: I'd describe it as stupid. We're stupid because we're dying left and right because we don't think. It's not that we think we're invincible or that we're not gonna get hurt, we just don't think at all. We don't want to take the time to think.

Question #3: What are the most positive aspects of our generation?

Jade: We are not as prejudiced as we used to be. My mother and father were never friends with any black people, and I have a large number of black friends. I don't see it as color, I see it as their personality.

Question #4: What is the single worst aspect of this generation?

Anne: Irresponsibility. People make a lot of big mistakes and we don't accept the responsibility.

Steve: The worst aspect of our generation is probably our fear to use our freedom. Generations ago, people were fighting and dying against Great Britian everywhere for the freedom that we now have, and we are afraid to use it.

We do not say what is on our mind, or wear the clothes that we want, because we think that people will laugh at us because of it. If we won't use our freedom, then why even have it.

Colette: We just go out and do things, and then we think about the consequences.

Erik: I'm not worried about death. I believe in destiny. Everything's already laid into place.

Question #5:
What is the greatest influence on a teen's life?

Jade: Your peers, because that's who you chill with and that's who you try and impress.

Anne: When you're little, your family is building your foundation, so I think that then they have the biggest influence. If you don't get along with your family, then you are going to look elsewhere. I have a really good relationship with my family, and I would never lie to them or anything else. My friends influence me, but not in the same way as my parents. Even if my friends wanted to do something crazy, I wouldn't disobey my parents like that.

Question #6:
Is religion important, and if so why?

Sheldon:(I go) to learn about the Bible and because I feel I need to be there. When I get older and when I won't be with my parents, I know that I can go to church without them always by my side.

Leigh Ann: My mom makes me (go). She says I'm not old enough to make my own decision on whether to go to church or not. We fight about it all the time, because I don't want to go to church. I don't believe in my religion, and I think it's wrong that she forces my religion on me.

Steve: I don't have a religion. I believe that there's a God and a devil, but I don't worship either of them.

Erik: I haven't been to church in 8 1/2 years . I haven't really wanted to go.

Question #7:
Gangs are becoming more prominent in today's society. Why is that?

Jerome: I don't think it's such a peer-pressure thing, as much as it's the kind of situation that you are in. When you have kids coming out of families that don't really care, then when they get friends they want to be close to them. It is almost like their family. I read all the time that kids are in gangs because of their economic status. There is nothing else to do. It is an escape for kids, and it is their way to be part of a large family.

" Your family is a big part of your life when you are little. Then, as you grow up, your friends become a bigger part of the things that influence you. You don't really care what your parents think when you are 15 or 16 because you are in high school, and you have your friends."

-Collette Armstrong-

Question #8:
Is money or social status important in today's society?

Colette: Money is really important in society today because everybody wants to be accepted. An easy way to be accepted is to have a nice car, or nice clothes and stuff like that.

Josh: Our whole society is based on money and wealth and power.

Question #9:
What are attitudes today towards different races, and interracial relationships?

Colette: I think it's extremely unfair to judge people because of their skin, but it does happen and will no matter what.

Erik: Even in the lunchroom the black people sit with the black people and the white people sit with the white people. It happens.

Sheldon: I have a white girlfriend, and though my mother doesn't approve of it, in the long run, when I get older she's either going to have to learn to accept it or just go on. As long as I'm happy with it, I'm not gonna stop. Your parents can tell you what to do now when you are under their roof, but when you have grown and you are on your own, it is what you feel is right. It is not the outside or the color that matters.

Steve: I don't think it (interracial dating) is morally wrong. I'm not gonna do it, but if other people want to, that's their business. I don't care.

Question #10: What are your last thoughts on teenagers and their attitudes

Jerome: We need to stop being so envious of other people because it is not right. People want what you have that is what starts a whole lot of problems.

Sheldon: I think that some teens need to realize what they have for the future. I think that we need to wake up and realize that this world is not a game.

Josh: The fact that teens are so young and they think of death happening to older people, combined with the thought of "it can't happen to me," makes us ignorant.

Steve: We're misunderstood. Older people don't know what we're going through and how it affects us.

Just Another View

editorial by Mike Turner

A freshman enjoying a weekend morning has his life cut short by an automobile. Love trouble leads another to suicide. Three students are killed in a car wreck. Five deaths within a two-month period, and all who perished attended Warren Central.

If anything, these incidents serve to remind students that no one is as invincible as he or she would like to think. Infant, teenager, adult - it doesn't matter. Death happens, and it happens no matter how old a person is. Some people may argue that this is a cold statement, and that teenagers are supposed to have "fun." Well, no one is saying that a teenager or anyone else shouldn't have fun. The definition of "fun" is the question. Is it when a person experiences the up-most enjoyment in an activity, or an excuse to rebel against the rules of society?

Self-denial has an apparent lock on our perceptions. Smoking is an example of this. Whether it's a status symbol, or because nerves need to be calmed, people keep up the habit with death being the furthest thing from their minds. "It won't happen to me," they think. "I'm too young to develop any physical ailments." Every puff, though, still blackens the lungs and heightens blood pressure. This could prevent having fun later on in life. Permanently.

This attitude is the same thing shared by excessive drinkers, crash dieters, and traffic violators. The very thought that a person can carry out a dangerous task as long as he or she is "careful" is an ominous thought. Preventing the inevitable will not happen. One can only cheat death for so long because it will eventually catch-up.

Precaution is the dividing line between enjoyment and risk. Taking into consideration the consequences that follow our actions is not as selfish as speeding around and endangering lives. A less brazen attitude will keep a person around for a while longer. So, which will it be: living to party another day or a night at the county morgue?

The choice is ours.

Bedrooms

The eyes may be the windows to the soul, but the bedroom is a window to the personality! What colors you use, how you decorate, how clean your room is - it all says something about you. The ancient Chinese even believed that the way your room was arranged could affect your future. So how does your room compare?

Leigh Ann Webb

Sophomore Andy Cochran proudly shows off his stereo system, a main part of his room. " I have a couch, entertainment center, and entertainment system with a turn table, plenty of Jimi Hendrix and Micheal Jordan posters, personal drawings, photographs, etc. It says I like to be independent and do what seems cool to me," said Cochran.

Feng Shui (pronounced 'foong shway') is the art of manipulating the Universal Life Force so that it flows smoothly, unblocking obstructions, be it within our bodies or the habitat in which we spend our lives.

Ok, so it's not exactly a clear explanation. What is Feng Shui? Basically, it's an ancient Chinese art of decorating, literally meaning "wind and water," that incorporates architectural changes, location, furniture placement, color, and Chinese astrology. The art of Feng Shui is based on the idea of Chi, or "life force." The Chinese believed that, in order to lead a happy life, one's surroundings must allow Chi to flow smoothly.

Some of the basic principals of Feng Shui are:

- No bonsai trees, cut or dried flowers, or pets in cages in the house - this "stunted growth" goes against nature.
- The front entrance of a house must be the right size, width, and height, since it is believed to be the "mouth" of the house.
- Place wind chimes and bells in dark corners and long halls to "attract and invigorate Chi."
- To bring blessings, good luck, and new opportunities, scatter barley or wheat to the wind, inside or out of the house.
- Just as the front door is considered the "mouth" of the house, the master bedroom is the "heart." Bed placement in the master bedroom is very important.

Left: Ducking to avoid the Christmas lights and beads strung from the ceiling, junior Josh Fleischer adjusts one of the many pictures decorating his walls. "The only reason I did this was to create a surreal effect to help me escape from reality when I needed it. We all need that," said Fleischer.

Top right: "My room is a mixture of angels and frogs. I have two parts of my room that are my favorites: my TV/VCR/ stereo stand and my frog collection. I have always been referred to in my family as 'Daddy's Little Angel.' I have angels for that reason. It took me about two weeks to get all the frogs, but about three years for all the angels," said sophomore Natali Helfrich Bottom right: "I like my room because it shows a lot of different things I like and think of. It also shows some people I really admire for the things they've done.," said junior Matt Griggs, shown relaxing on his bed.

How does your BEDROOM reflect your personality?

"My room is really neat because I painted it all by myself. It has pink, blue, and green walls and painted wine bottles. I have a huge window with plants from Florida around it, plus I have a really big comfy chair."
- sophomore Melissa Cherry

"My walls are a bright sky blue with dark blue sponge paint. I have a lot of colorful, kind of weird stuff around my room. I would say my style is pretty different. It shows that I'm a bright and colorful person. I'm not afraid to just be myself."
-junior Nicki Prifogle

"Most of my bedroom is decorated in Minnie Mouse, and I have pictures of Leonardo DiCaprio all over my closet door. I would say my style is kind of immature. I am obsessed with Leo and Minnie."
-freshman Amanda Quinley

My bedroom isn't really decorated. I just have prom pictures from sophomore and junior year and pictures of my friends and me in California. I have no bed, just covers to sleep on, a computer, dressers, a desk, and stereo. My room says that I am messy, but people don't see me as that. I am organized, but not at home."
-senior David Smith

"My room is mostly decorated with furniture, like my computer and TV. The way that my room and closet are would classify that I'm very organized and polite."
- junior Abdul Bilal

"My room has a futon bunk-bed and mase all over my wall and makeup and hair stuff on my dresser. Overall, my room is clean. I'm a clean person. I like to be nice and neat."
-junior Erica Bonds

A DAY in the life of...

Raphael Winkler

• How long have you been in America? Describe your host family.
"I have been here since August 7th, 1997. I live with the family of Mike May. Everybody is nice to me in this family, and I would say they are a typical American family."

• Describe your family at home. Do you ever get homesick?
"My family in Germany is completely different. There I didn't have that many responsibilities, and I also had a lot more open relationships with my parents. The only time I got a little homesick was around Christmas."

• What is the main difference between your home and here?
"I would say the main difference is school. First of all, they are a lot bigger in the U.S., and they have a lot more opportunities for students."

• What do you think you have gained from being an exchange student?
"I believe I have gotten a lot more self-confidence, and I feel more like an adult."

My Day...
...in Cologne, Germany

"I would wake up at 7:30 in the morning and go to school at 7:55. School is a lot different. One major difference is that there are no school sports at my school in Germany, and another thing is that we have 13 years of school instead of 12. We go to school from 8a.m. to 1p.m., so we don't have a lunch break. Usually after school I went home and had lunch with my family and then I went to play sports. On the weekend I slept a lot and in the evening I would go out with friends. Since in Germany the drinking age is 16, we would usually go to some parties and have some fun!"

Begaiym Tologonay Beraikeyeva

• How do you like it here? What do you think about the people you've met and the friends you've made?
"I really like it here. People are very friendly, and they smile all the time, say 'hi' to you even if they don't know you. While being here I made lots of friends and met many nice, interesting people. Thanks to them my experience has been successful, and I had an unforgettable year. Thanks to my teachers and friends, I felt just right at home here at Warren Central. I think because of my host family, teachers, and friends I never felt homesick. Whenever I needed them, they were there for me!"

• What do you usually do in your free time in America?
"I like to mess around on the internet, read some news, watch TV, go shopping, go ice skating. I like to play with my younger [host] siblings. I read a lot."

• What do you miss most from home?
"I miss mountains and food."

My Day...
...in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan

"I used to get up at 6:50, and I had to be at school at 7:30. My school was big, 2,100 students, but not as big as W.C. Usually school lasts for four or five hours. Since it's not that long, we don't have an official lunch break. But, during long breaks, you can go to the cafeteria and get a snack. After I get home from school and get lunch, I clean the house. It takes about an hour. Then, I do my homework. Very often, I have to go to the library in order to do my homework. After I am done with my homework, I can watch TV, go with my friends, play some video games, etc."

...a foreign exchange student.

Christoph Nunke

My Day...
...in Berlin, Germany

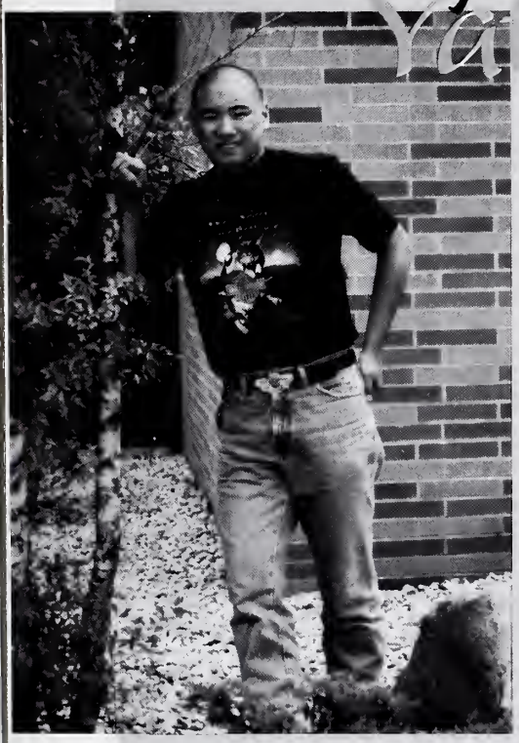
"I get up at 7 in Germany. School starts at 8, and I get out at 2, but it's a lot harder. My school is tiny compared to WC; we have 450 students, we don't get to choose our classes, and we have to take all these not fun classes like physics, calculus, biology, chemistry, etc. Lunch is 25 minutes, and the food tastes better; we have more variety, less fast food. We eat much slower and use a knife also. I go home right after school everyday. I spend time with friends, do homework, and play basketball or tennis. I have enough free time, but school is tough on you."

• Describe your family at home. Do you ever get homesick?
"I love my family at home, because my parents are really, really nice and cool. I am the only child and we live in a very nice neighborhood in Berlin. I never got homesick, because America is a fun place, but I miss my friends."

• What is the main difference between Berlin and Indianapolis?
"Indianapolis is a nice city. The main difference is that Indianapolis is spread out and Berlin is more compact. Also, Berlin has over 4 million people."

• What have you learned from this experience?
"I have learned many things from being an exchange student. First of all, I learned how to speak English much better. I got to know many people. I gained a lot more independence and confidence. I learned how to deal with people better and got to see the world from a different point of view. All these things will help me in my life."

Yatsutake Nakano



• Describe your family at home. Do you get homesick?
"I live with my mother and two brothers. My mother works for a department store. One of my brothers is 18, and he is a college student. My oldest brother is 20, and he is in the Japanese Army. Even though I miss my family, I have not been very homesick."

• In America, what do you usually do in your free time?
"I go to the movies very often. I also spend a lot of time playing the guitar or playing some basketball."

• What are some of the main attractions in your country?
"In Japan, we have a different culture from any other country. We also have many very beautiful places. There are a lot of temples, islands, and we have a lot of ceremony. Most of those ceremonies are adopted from the very old culture of Japan."

• What do you miss most from home?
"I miss my family and my friends. Since I like it here so much, I don't feel I miss many things from Japan."

My Day...
...in Sendai, Japan

"I usually got up at 7:30, and I had to be at school at 8:30. My high school is only for males. Since you can't choose the classes like here, everyone stays in the same room the whole day. School's over at 3:00. I had about 40 minutes for lunch, and I had to stay in school. Most of the students either eat their lunch in the cafeteria, or they buy something on the way to school in the morning. Since I was on the basketball team, I had practice every evening. Practice starts right after school, and it's over between 6:00 and 7:00. When I got home I usually did my homework and relaxed. I didn't have very much free time."

PHAEDRA SMITH

When you hear the name Phaedra Smith you probably think about sports. Well, she has a lot more to her than just her athletic abilities. From a family of five athletes, Smith has learned more about life than basketball, soccer, and softball; she has learned family, school, and God play an important role in life.

by Carly Pfeiffer

Not one to back down, Phaedra Smith is always looking forward to a challenge. With her 100 percent effort at practices and her willingness to always strive to understand the most difficult equation, Smith shows she is able to defeat any obstacle. It is difficult to juggle three sports, orchestra, academics, student council, and church, but she proved it could be done.

> "They [sports] come EASY to me because I'm an ATHLETE. I can just do it. And I PRACTICE hard because I always want to get BETTER."

Smith became involved through her family. She now participates in three varsity sports: softball, basketball, and soccer. She began playing softball at the age of five.; her basketball career began when she was 11 years old. Soccer was her new sport-of-choice this past season,which she claims to be her favorite. "It's very aggressive, a lot of quick moving and stuff. It's a lot of fun." Even though sports come natural to Smith, she stays after practices and works to improve. "They [sports] come easy to me because I'm an athlete. I can just do it. And I practice hard because I always want to get better."

With the help of her parents and her faith in God, Smith can handle even the biggest tasks. "To me it's easy because I'm a hard worker. I like to work hard. My parents help me and make sure I'm doing well." One of the most important things in Smith's life is her parents. "They encourage me, they help me feel more confident . Like if I have a bad game, they support me." The support Smith gets from her parents means a great deal to her. "For me it makes me feel good to know that my parents are behind me." Her faith also plays a very important role in her life. "He [Jesus] helps me in life." As a child Smith was raised in a Christian home "Now that we [Phaedra and her two siblings] are older we know that it's right and that's what we want to do." The Smiths spend a lot of their time at church. "If we're not at home we're probably at church."

In school, Smith is just as determined to give it her all as she is on the field. Math subjects are her favorites, not because they are the easiest, but because they are the most challenging. "I like to work stuff out and get it right. I like to have to use my head." Smith would like to further her educational career by going to college. "I want to go to a Division I school on an athletic scholarship and be a pre-med student." She responded to the question why by saying, "Money, basically. Also I like the difficult kind of stuff...It's something I'd have to work for to be a good doctor. I'd like to help people also." If she had the choice she would go to Indiana University or Purdue University so she could be close to home. She prefers I.U. because "it has a good medical school, good athletics and also because my brother goes there."

With both of Smith's older siblings getting full rides to college, Smith has concluded, "I am next!"

"I am NEXT!"

Seth Harrison

Seth Harrison

What if you couldn't talk for a day and your only means of communication was a computer? Would you feel trapped in a "tunnel" because you were surrounded by people who didn't understand? Well, Seth Harrison lives with this reality everyday of his life.

by Chad Smothers

"In my WORLD...you don't get mad at people, you get MAD at situations 'Normals spend too much energy on being ANGRY. 'Normals' are way too EMOTIONAL."

The warm welcome from Seth's mom helped calm me as I walked through the door. Interrupting his favorite movie, Back to the Future, I took a seat at his computer to begin the interview. Reluctant to leave his 4-star video, Seth walked into the room. He sat down between me and his mom, grabbed her hand, and greeted me.

"Nice to see you, Chad." Because of his inability to speak,this response took longer than a couple seconds to receive. Not only can he not speak, he doesn't have the muscle control in both hands to type. Instead, he has to type every letter one-by-one with his index finger. Holding his mom's hand for support, he tediously answered my questions which were meant to learn more about Seth as a person.

Seth Harrison is just like many other juniors at Warren Central. However, there is a barrier between him and the others in his junior class. Seth is autistic.

Autism is defined as a mental state marked by disregard of external reality, but what is it really? "It means being caught between two worlds. I understand everything (you say), but can't tell you unless we communicate with a computer...I'm in a tunnel," says Seth. Fully aware of what's going on around him, Seth is unable to interact with anyone without the use of a computer.

Because he can't verbalize what he wants to say, Seth has a facilitator shadowing him throughout his school day. After riding the bus to school, he goes to his first period class and meets his facilitator there. "My facilitator is my link to focusing. He/she is a ground to getting my words out. They also do any writing of information in class, steer me in the right direction, stuff like that."

Throughout the interview, many responses highlighted Seth's true nature that of a teenager. When asked what the main differences between the two of us, Seth humorously responded, "I have more hair." And he does. On a more serious note, Harrison went on to say, "I see myself as normal in a mirror,(but) being seen as autistic by your kind."

No two autistics are affected the exact same way. It varies from person to person.

Emotions, if any at all, are usually very cold. "In my world...you don't get mad at people, you get mad at situations. 'Normals' spend too much energy on being angry. 'Normals' are way too emotional."

Harrison's emotions were evident, though, as he communicated the challenges of his autism. Staying positive every day is a difficult endeavor when it is nearly impossible to communicate with anyone. The main thing that helps him out is support by others. "My core group of support helps me accept my autism, but I have to believe in myself to make the day to day acceptance to go on." Then he added, "Autism has a very high suicide rate, you know?"

The day-to-day acceptance can be tougher on some days than others for Harrison. "Dealing with changes is hard. Structure and pattern are important to me; it keeps my autism under control."

Things that us 'normals' do as an everyday routine become an extremely annoying aspect to Seth's life. "The noise you guys make is like a roar to me." For Seth, like most people, two is company, but three is a crowd. "It also bugs me how much you touch...it hurts." Because of his autism, these things frustrate him to a greater degree than they do to us.

Frustration also causes nonsense phrases like "Cars, trucks, and planes" and "Crap!" vocalized by Seth that kept a smile on my face. A more sensible sentence repeated by Seth was "What's dad doing, Mom?" "The nonsense words I speak are out of frustration because I can't verbalize," said Seth. Because he has a facilitator at school with him throughout the day, he doesn't have to try to verbalize.

At school, Seth's favorite class is World History. "The study...of where we came from is interesting to me. We are living in a smaller world and we need to know more about it," he said.

Seth says he would like to "Go to college at Syracuse, with luck, major in Journalism. And hopefully write a best-seller some day." Because he has to type everything, Seth does about 2-3 hours of homework every night. He still maintains good grades on every report card.

The special help he gets at school aids Seth in earning good grades, which in turn gives him the chance to pursue his dreams. By learning more about our world, Seth brings himself closer to his aspirations. But if we would take the time to get into his world, we could help him reach his goals.

To Be Included

by Seth Harrison

I was going to be in several 'normal' classes this first year of High School. The classes were English, Journalism, and Algebra. That may seem regular to most students, but regular doesn't describe me. I am autistic. I am verbally challenged, that is, I don't respond verbally like regular students do. I have pat phrases and nonsense questions that I sputter at any given time. In order for my thoughts to be heard, I type on a computer with the aid of a facilitator. So for me being in regular classes was like going into the unknown.

I was part of a system called inclusion. That is where a student with special needs participates in a non-special education class. The idea is to give everyone the opportunity or exposure to meet and interact with someone different. The concept is a sound one when used correctly so that it benefits everyone in the class room. The system must recognize when inclusion fails as well as when it succeeds. In my case, I like to think it was successful this year.

When asked how they felt about having a special needs student in their class, the response from my classmates were varied. Some were apprehensive, others didn't think I could fit in, and some just didn't care. All of them gave me a chance, I was not made fun of or ridiculed. The assignments were given to me just like others. I had to work for my grades just as hard. One student was surprised that my work got A's when theirs earned C's. The fact that I couldn't talk didn't mean that I couldn't learn was the lesson learned by another student. The ability to fit in was expected by me as well as the effort to let me in was expected of my classmates. Neither of us failed.

Inclusion was a good idea. The concept of accepting an individual for what they can do , not how they look or behave is also a good idea. I have been included this year within regular classes. I have exposed people to the world of special needs and helped them see we aren't so different. I have had the pleasure to be taught by gifted teachers, and to share class time with some warm, understanding kids. My Freshman year was a success in part to the willingness of the people I go to school with to be included in my world.

Ian Thomas

The future. It's coming. Are you ready? Not many students fully take advantage of the time they have in high school to prepare themselves for their future, but Ian Thomas is doing just that, making the best of what Warren has to offer.

by Vicki Oliver

Preparation. For Ian Thomas, that's what his experience at Warren Central is all about. Preparation for a job, for college, and for life. With all the organizations he participates in, experience is not hard to come by. "I'm in honors band, marching band, orchestra, jazz band, VICA machine trades, and National Vocational Technical Honor Society," said Thomas.

So what exactly does all that mean? VICA, or Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, is a machine trades class offered at the Career Center. "It's a metal shop," said Thomas. "We shape and form metal into what we want it to be. We compete in contests; you can only compete if you're a member of VICA. The faster we do it and the better it looks will determine our score." Placing first in VICA regionals, Thomas easily advanced on to the state contest, held at Warren in August. Out of 16 participants, he placed 6th, just missing a place on the podium.

Besides winning contests, all his vocational skills will also help Thomas secure a job and go to college. "Through machine trades, I'm going into a four year apprentice program. If I get all A's and B's it's fully paid. After I get my four year apprenticeship and get my journeyman's card, I'm going to try to get into a real college and get a degree in music, probably teaching," said Thomas. "When you get a journeyman's card it certifies that you're a skilled machinist or tool and dye maker. I'm going to be a tool and dye maker."

Even though tool and dye may be in his immediate future, Thomas'

> "I know the CAREER CENTER'S the best in the state. I couldn't have gotten a BETTER EDUCATION in machine trades anywhere else."

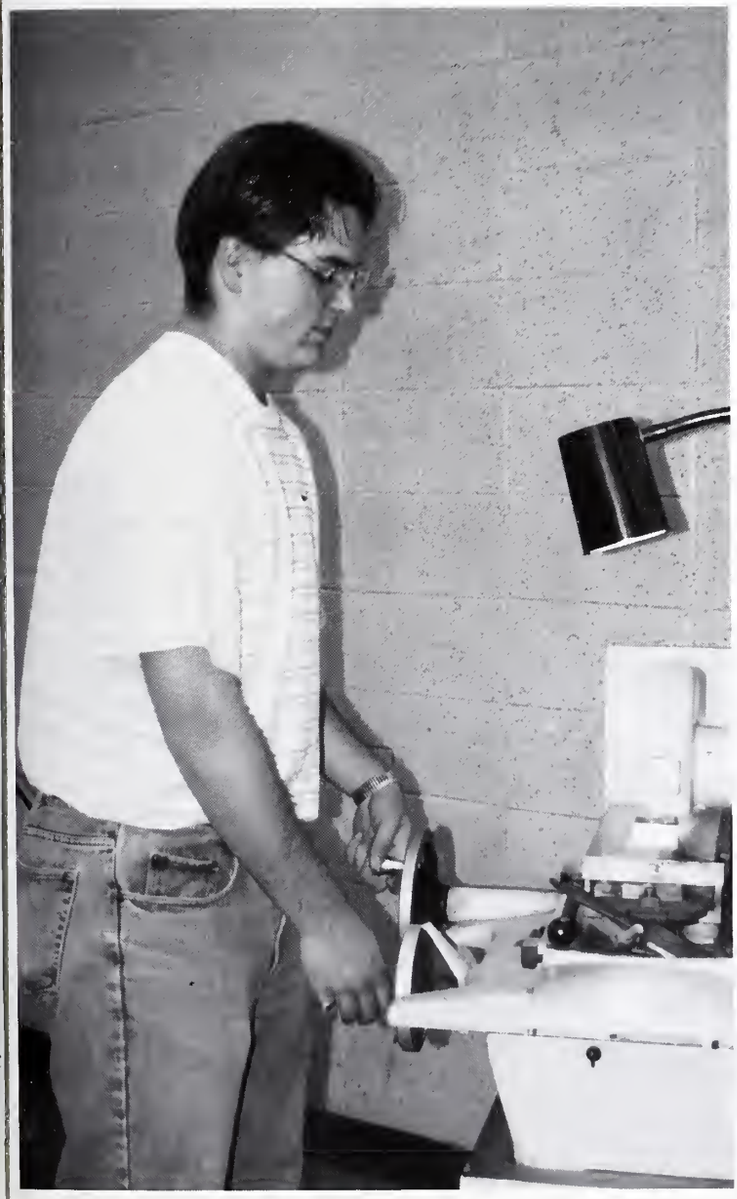
long-term goal is to go into music. Besides the band experience he gets in all the school bands he's a member of, he also works on his music outside of school. "I'm working on playing with my grandpa's band. I've been practicing on the music," said Thomas. Playing with a classical and jazz band will help him keep up and improve his music skills while he goes to college to get his apprenticeship. All these things combined provide Thomas with a secure future. "Because of my machine trades class, I feel fully prepared to go into my field, and after four years of playing with my grandpa, I'll probably be really prepared for music," he said.

With all the activities he participates in, how much free time does Thomas have? "Not much," he said. "I go to work; my shop closes at 6p.m. Because of band, I only work four days a week. I stay after for band on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays." Thomas works at Wirecut Technologies, a job he got through Walker Career Center. "I think it's a very good program," he said of the job placement program at Walker. "Where I work, my boss refuses to hire anybody who's not from the Career Center." What free time he does have he spends with his girlfriend or friends, at the movies, out to dinner, or practicing martial arts, another of his pass-times.

When he leaves the building in May and starts getting ready for college and the rest of his future, Thomas will have no doubts. "I know the Career Center is the best in the state. I couldn't have gotten a better education in machine trades anywhere else. I can run all the machines already. I'm not starting from scratch like a lot of people."

Leigh Anne Webb

Thomas practices his trumpet during band class. Practicing music took up a lot of his time; three days a week after school, an hour each day during class, and extra time at home working on both school music and music for his grandpa's band was what it took to perfect his technique.



Leigh Anne Webb

His class in the Career Center was only one of many places where tool and dye skills came in handy. This machine was a familiar sight to Thomas, who also earned his spending money doing similar work at Wirecut Technologies, a job he got through the Career Center.

ACADEMICS

Academics was more than just sitting in a classroom all day. It was about solving school-wide problems, taking responsibility, and learning how to guide others in the right direction. Most of all academics meant teaching us how to reach the dream we all had inside. The dream of what we would one day be and what we would achieve in life. Through education our goals are reached, but our generation will continue to strive to reach that everlasting dream.

The students of Warren Central High School, in cooperation with the community, take on the challenge of molding the students of today into the leaders of tomorrow, by teaching respect, showing how to acquire knowledge, and striving toward excellence and unity.

- Student Leadership Retreat Mission Statement

The 1997-98 school year brought many changes to the school regarding leadership. Principal Robert Albano introduced a Leadership Code that stated that students in leadership positions were expected to be more responsible than other students. Many sports captains and club officers participated in one of the two annual Leadership Retreats in order to accomplish these new expectations.

The Code stated that "WCHS expects a higher standard of conduct from its leaders." These standards included passing five full credit classes, maintaining a grade point average of no less than 5.0 (C), not using or possessing illegal drugs or alcohol, and not violating any law. If a student leader violated any of these standards, they could be suspended or permanently disqualified from holding any office during his high school career.

Albano said he felt this Code was necessary because "you should be especially responsible if you are in a leadership position." Albano felt that student leaders should also be role models and mentors.

Two Leadership Retreats were held this year to help students improve their leadership skills. Each retreat had the goal to teach students the skills they would need to know to be successful leaders. Albano said, "Our kids do a wonderful job at learning what leadership is all about."

Students, parents, and faculty wonder if Warren Central is . . .

too close for comfort

by Karen Hromada

"How big should Warren Central get?" This question, asked by Mr. Craig Hintz, superintendent of Warren Township schools, refers to the population of the school, as well as the size of the building. As high school enrollment reached a record high of 2,897 in October, many administrators, teachers, students and parents wanted to know the answer to this question.

The growth Warren Central has experienced in the past few years has presented many challenges for the students and faculty. The building's large size and crowded hallways make it hard to get from one end of the school to the other in the passing period. Also, larger class sizes kept teachers from giving students individual attention, which most students felt was necessary.

"Sometimes I have to teach myself because my teacher is busy with someone else," said Clare Baxter, senior.

More than 75 teachers didn't have their own classrooms, which was an inconvenience for them because they couldn't spend their preparatory period at their desks.

At the beginning of the school year, many students were surprised to find their lockers in the Walker Career Center. Together, the school and the Career Center have 3,200 lockers; however, few students prefer to have a locker so far away from most of their classes.

> "In many ways we function as a small school because of fine programs such as the Respect Campaign, Student Council, and co-curricular activities."
> - Mr. Craig Hintz

Principal Mr. Robert Albano said that this problem was solved when students transferred to different schools after the beginning of the year. Also, the shortage of student parking was quickly solved by moving 125 Career Center transfer students to a different lot.

Despite all of these challenges, the students and faculty were given many advantages because of the size of the school. Students chose more academic classes from over six hundred types of course offerings.

"We are able to offer a wide variety of courses, programs and experiences for students," said Hintz.

In Albano's opinion, school size wasn't always negative. He felt the attitude of the student body was positively affected by the size of the school. "Students at Warren are very focused."

Hintz felt that the school worked just as well as a smaller one would. "In many ways we function as a small school because of fine programs such as the Respect Campaign, Student Council, and co-curricular activities," Hintz said.

What will the School looks for solutions to overcrowding future hold?

by Allison Dudgeon

As the number of students in Warren Central continues to grow at an astonishing rate, the administration continues to look for a long-term solution to the problem of overcrowding.

While the school board is still looking at many possible solutions, and has made no definite plans, their discussions focus mainly on two ideas.

Building a second high school has long been a rumor. However, Principal Robert Albano doesn't think the township will act on this idea for some time. "I won't be around when that happens," Albano stated.

Although a second high school would solve many problems, the township does not own enough land to build a high school, nor do they have the estimated $60 million it would take to construct another high school the size of Warren Central.

The other possible solution to the overcrowding problem is to build a freshman wing onto Warren Central. This addition would contain all of the required courses for freshmen; however, they would still be able to go elsewhere in the building for their elective classes. A freshman wing would cost an estimated $10 million, and according to Superintendent Craig Hintz it would "provide a better transition from middle school to high school" for freshman students.

EDUCATION 2000

by Karen Hromada and Allison Dudgeon

Throughout the years, education has undergone changes. Each modification, no matter how small, has contributed to the manner in which future generations would learn and be taught. Perhaps the 1997-98 school year was one of those years that has had the greatest impact on the direction that education is taking.

The ISTEP+ Graduation Exam was introduced this year to the sophomore classes of Indiana schools. This exam decided, among other things, whether or not a student learned the basics of math and English and was ready to graduate. Although many students found the exam to be difficult and unfair to the sophomore class, faculty and administrators continued to stress the importance and need for such a test. Principal Mr. Robert Albano said, "The Graduation Exam keeps us looking at continual improvement as a goal."

Unfortunately, scores on the test were lower than expected throughout the state. Administrators decided

Sophomores have mixed reactions toward results of new Graduation Exam

Sophomore students answered the following questions about the JSTEP+ Graduation Exam

compiled by Allison Dudgeon

Q: How did the Graduation Exam help you?
A: "It only let me know which class I'm better at and which one I need more work at." Ashley Dillon
"I think it prepared me for future exams that will play a more important role." Dexter Alcorn
Q: How did you prepare for the test?
A: "I just studied a little bit. I didn't take it seriously because I knew I had more times to try." Dillon
Q: Why do you think the results were lower than expected?
A: "Because the students were unprepared, no one knew what to expect." Jennifer Reese
"Because if someone sets a standard grade for everyone to reach then not everyone will reach that standard. Also, they need to stop looking at the negatives and reward the positives." Angela Thoman
Q: What do you think would help students do better next year?
A: "Nothing -- just a good education." Michele Hudgins
"More practice and preparation time. It is all up to the students." Alcorn Q: What were the advantages and disadvantages of the Graduation Exam?

that some changes needed to be made to help students learn the skills needed for the test. Teachers and students realized what was expected of them and students took the test more seriously. Although test scores were low, administrators felt the exam was a positive experience. Counselor Ms. Debbie Cummings said, "Ongoing assessments of student achievement and exploration of strategies we can use to improve the learning process are always positive activities."

Technology has also been a major contributor to education. It adds to the overall educational experience by providing students with computer skills needed to survive in a society which is centered around technology. Constant changes in all types of technology have always improved education as well as life in general.

Schools in the United States have been required to meet the students' emotional needs as well as educational. Schools do this by providing students with the services of guidance counselors. Schools are also required to teach students about social problems and situations such as drugs, parenting, and health. These things were not always taught in schools and are still not taught in many other countries. In addition to teaching these things, schools also have to continue making sure students are learning basic skills.

Albano also felt that a high school needs to be a safe and positive environment. He said that Warren has created this in the past three or four years through the Campaign for Respect and the Leadership Code.

Warren Central has made many beneficial changes in education this year. The ISTEP+ Graduation Exam, technology, new educational topics, guidance support, and a positive attitude among students have all contributed to the success of education at Warren Central.

"Constant changes in all types of technology have always improved education as well as life in general."

Advanced Placement classes help students prepare for college

by Karen Hromada

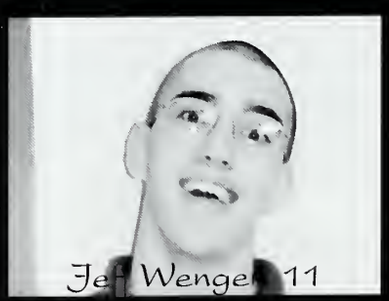
Advanced Placement classes were a chance for students to study at the college level while still in high school. Students in these classes were given the opportunity to receive advanced placement or credit in college. The classes challenged students with accelerated learning. Students liked having this challenge because they felt they learned more of the skills they would need in college, such as writing and time management skills. They also thought that the small class sizes helped to eliminate distractions such as discipline problems, so more concentration could be put on learning.

Cindy McGowan, 11

"The people in the classes are more controlled and goal-oriented. They move faster and learn more . . . The teachers are more interesting and experienced. I think I have learned more writing skills and worked harder so I will know the level of difficulty in college."

Abby Fisher, 12

"I decided to take AP classes because I thought that colleges would look at the fact that I took more challenging classes. The level of work in these classes is what you might expect when you go to college."



Jeff Wenger, 11

"I want to be challenged and they help to prepare me for college. The increased workload and difficult course material allow me to get some of my college classes out of the way now."

How do students prepare for standardized tests?

"The first thing I did was look through the packet the guidance office gives out. We studied over some old SAT's in English class. After the first time I took the test I decided I needed to improve my math score and my vocabulary skills, so I ordered SAT flashcards and studied them, and they improved my score by about twenty points."

Michelle Ziegler, 12

"When I first got the SAT packet, I was really excited and promised myself I'd work hard and try to get a high score. I even purchased the SAT computer program. I think there are a lot of students like myself who have good intentions of studying and acing the SAT's, but reality steps in, and we realize it's just another thing we let slip by."

There is a saying: "With great power, comes great responsibility". When the game was on the line, did you try to win it and steal the glory, or did you allow a teammate of lesser ability to step up and get his chance in the spotlight? What would the team have wanted? What did it need? It was your decision, hope you chose carefully. The choice could have brought victory or meant defeat.

or off the court, there is much more to being involved in athletics than just playing the game. It's more than getting the basket or scoring the winning touchdown, to play you need to practice.

In a teeter-totter basketball game with the Mt. Vernon Mauraders, Warren Central was able to pull away with the victory, the final score was 57-49. So what does the team do the first practice after an eight-point win? In two one-syllable words: run laps.

"Running sprints makes players mentally tougher because I compare it to a game," explained Mr. Victor Bush, assistant coach for the team. "The last ten laps are the fourth quarter."

You think that athletes just work out for the coach's sake? Guess again. Regardless of team practices or off-season training, an athlete needs to be in prime condition. Football players run up and down stadium bleachers during practices. Some track stars get up and run a mile each morning before school. Wrestlers daily must monitor their weight as well as bench-press to increase strengths. Activities such as these take a great deal of time away from the individual, take excessive dedication, and are etxremely competitive. It seems only natural that being the best is the lone, motivating reason for such devotion.

SCHOLARSHIPS
• CAN YOU GET ONE? •

Scholarships are reserved for students who have shown superior academic or other ability, such as athletic or leadership skills. Several financial aid grants are awarded to students who demonstrate these skills.

Michael Brooks (senior)- Received a full scholarship to Indiana State University. His well-documented high school football career turned some heads. His tuition, books, room & board are completly covered. He plans to major in education.

Leah Stanfield (senior)- Received offers from several colleges. DePauw University offered $7,500 a year. Valaparaiso University offered one-fourth of her tuition. Hanover offered $18,000 over a 4 year period. The University of Evansville offered $2,500 for each of her four years. She plans to major in Biology.

William Bumphus (senior)- A State Track & Field champion 3 years running, and a well known football wide receiver, William received a full ride scholarship to Eastern Illinois. He hopes to continue his football and track career.

Taking a much needed moment during the sectional game against Richmond, junior Bob Dinn kneels in silence. He said, "During halftime, I sit in a corner all by myself and just think. I believe that silence helps keep your focus and concentration." Prayer was also very evident before a game and during halftime. "I felt that saying a prayer before a game gave me that extra kick to get my game started.", senior Michael Brooks said after a track meet.

Soaring above a pack of Wildcats, Jermaine Dearman sends home a spectacular dunk in the Winterfest game with Lawrence North.

SPORTIN' SLANG

Bobby Dinn makes a perfect swing during a game with Lutheran. Perfection was one of the main goals for the varsity baseball team which they gave many hours to achieve.

Scott Farley, Justin Beraiult, Andrew Conway, and John Sponsel watch their teammates as they take a beather in the game against Lutheran. The careful observations helped Warren win, 12-1.

The varsity baseball team walks off the field after a very good game against Lutheran. The game was their second best, only to their game against Manual, 16-9.

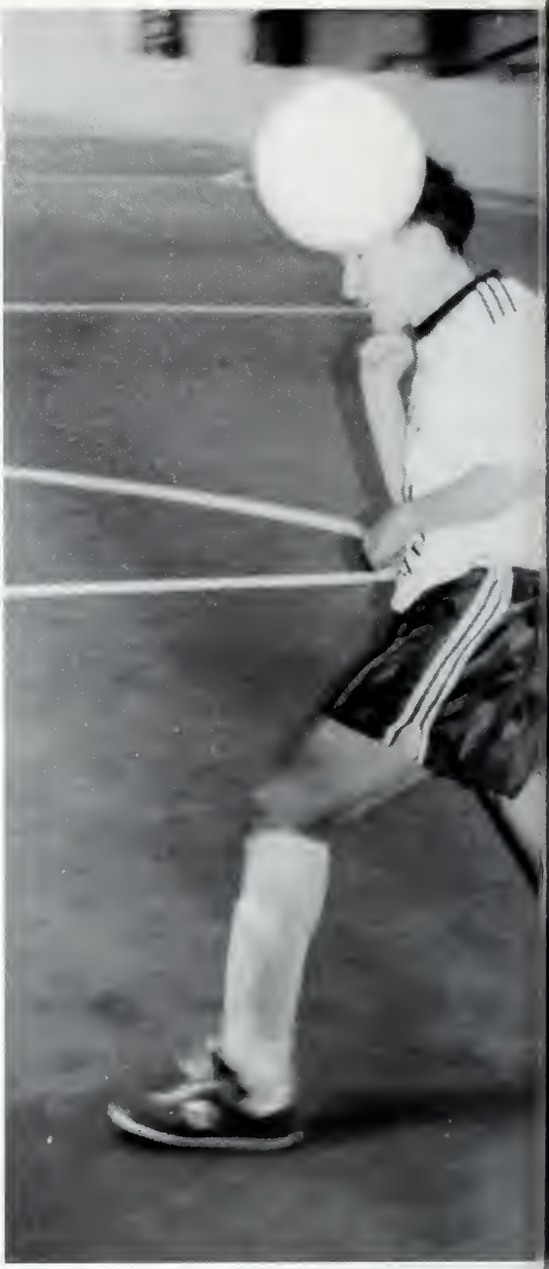
FOR THE FUN OF IT OR TO JUST STAY IN SHAPE FOR THE REGULAR SCHOOL SEASON, STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN A VARIETY OF ALTERNATIVE ATHLETICS.



Leigh Ann Webb

top: Playing for the YMCA Men's league, junior Keith Utter works on his lay-up during a practice at School 88.
middle: Junior Mike May sights his target and winds back for the shot during a pick-up game of roller hockey.
bottom: Senior Matt Shure and other WC students met at Creston Middle School for a game of tackle football.

ALTERNATIVE ATHLETICS

A LOOK AT SPORTS OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL

What do kids do after school these days? When your great-grandparents were teens, they came home after school to farm. Now students can participate in after school sports. But what about the kids that do go home? A number of them play after-school sports like indoor soccer, roller hockey, golf, etc... Intramural sports and the YMCA are pretty popular ways to spend some time. Why would someone want to do this though? Isn't training during the season enough, and if they don't play it for school, why not just sit at home and do nothing? Many students use outside sports to train for school sports or to stay in shape. Other students use it as a chance to meet new people or just hang out with friends. "It's inspirational; it helps me get my mind off things and I get to hang out with my friends," said sophomore Sean Wuethrich.

Senior Matt Dinn heads the ball during warm-up before an indoor game at Soccer World. Many students played indoor soccer during the winter in preparation for the next Warren soccer season , while others played for fun.

Junior Shannon Tabler practices her form on fishtails, a roll done during her solo routine. She also competed in a twirling corps that placed 7th nationally in the summer competition at Notre Dame University.

PAINTBALL

CHRIS FRITTS
DARK ARMIES
DECEMBER 5, 1997

Scraping the paint off his mask, Chris Fritts begins cleaning up after a paintball session at Dark Armies. A face mask isn't the only equipment needed for paintballing. A chestpad, a jumpsuit , and a cup are also provided. Welts become pretty common when you play. Many people wonder how this can be a good hobby when you come back bruised all the time. "It's fun," said Fritts,"You get to shoot other people."

ROCK CLIMBING

MATT GRIGGS
CLIMB TIME
JANUARY 26, 1998

Junior Matt Griggs scales the wall at Climb Time in Fishers. "I go about one or two times a week. It's really different," said Griggs. There's a lot that comes with climbing; for instance, you have to be flexible enough to stretch to those hand holds that you can't really see and you need a strong upper body to enable you to pull yourself up. " It challenges the mind just as much as the body. Getting ready for a climb is all personal," said Griggs.

My most memorable time was the first day of my freshman year. The school seemed so big, and I had no idea where I was going. I was afraid that I would get lost or be late to all my classes. There was also so many people and the school was so big. Now it seems small.

My junior year I dated Steve Ross. During Commencement he recevied his diploma and carnation. While walking to his seat, he handed me the carnation five rows up in front of everyone at Market Square Arena.

YOUR MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENT WAS...

My freshman year I was getting ready to get on the bus to go to school. It was really icy that particular morning and as I was trying to be careful getting on the bus. I slipped with my feet going right under the bus.

Dana Pennington

I had a class with a guy that I've had a crush on for a long time. I went out and bought a new outfit thinking that I could impress him. Well, I walked up to him and as I was half way there, I tripped over another chair and literally fell flat on my face. Needless to say, I never spoke to him again.

Lindsay Terry

Once I really had to use the restroom. I was in a hurry so I wasn't thinking about what I was doing. I later found out that my skirt was tucked into my pantyhose. The bad thing is I had been walking around like that for like five minutes.

SENIOR YEAR TIME LINE

GIRLS FLAG FOOTBALL OCTOBER 15

The senior girls take the championship title beating the sophomore girls in flag football. All the girls had fun proving to the guys that girls can play just as rough.

CHRISTMAS CARROLLING DEC. 14

The seniors enjoy a night of carroling through many different Warren township housing editions and even made their way to principle Mr. Albano's house to spread some Christmas spirit. After carroling, everyone enjoyed a fun time at Steak-n-Shake.

DURING YOUR HIGH SCHOOL YEARS, WHAT COULDN'T YOU LIVE WITHOUT?

Chris Price

Something I could not have lived without during my high school years would have to be all the beautiful women that make our school so interesting.

Brittney Stafford

Something I could not have lived without would be my friends. They are always there for me when I need them, from giving me a ride to just listening to my problems.

Grant Lyons

There are two things that I couldn't have lived without. My car and my parents. My car gets me whereever I need to go and my parents have always supported me no matter what.

WHo was your favorite teacher ?

My favorite teacher would have to be Mr.Carter becuase he makes students strive to be the best they can be. He also can laugh and joke around with his students.

•Will Lantz

My favorite teacher would have to be Mrs.Garte because she is so energetic and enthusiastic. She cares about her students and makes calculus fun to learn.

•Kelli Taylor

My favorite teacher in high school is my Anatomy/Physiology teacher, Mr. Gray. Even when I drive him nuts he always has a gentle attitude and a great sense of humor.

•Tiffany Roadwald

My favorite teacher would have to be Mr. Comiskey because he makes a very difficult class (Great Books) fun and exciting. He also makes it easy to learn.

•Ann Barnard

My favorite teacher is Mr. Kent. He makes the class interesting , which is what students need. He also is a real funny guy. He's the best teacher ever.

•Chris Weaver

Without a doubt, my favorite teacher is Mr. Payne. He has been a great influence on both my music and my life. Besides having a wonderful personality and being very personable, he is always willing to help students in any way he can.

What are you looking forward to the most next year?

Being able to know that I'll start my life in the "real world" soon. College is going to be such a shock, hopefully I'll be ready for it, but if not, oh well, I'll have to except it anyway.

The thing I look forward to as a senior is being recognized throughout the year and on graduation night not only as a senior of 1999, but as a school spirited leader of Warren Central. -junior, Holly Tarver-

I am looking forward to graduating with honors, hopefully, and just being a "senior". You just hear how great it is, but truthfully I am scared to death because I've got to go to college and be on my own. I guess it's all a part of growing up. -junior, Mary Lababit-

I am looking forward to receiving better grades. I also look forward to not having school after next year.

when did you do the most studying?

"I did the most studying during finals week. I studied so I wouldn't get F's on the finals and bring my grades down."

when did you have the most fun this year?

"Spring break in Panama City was fun. It was fun because there were no parents with us, and I was with all my friends. It was like a party that lasted all week."

What was the biggest change from last year?

The biggest change is how much homework I get, especially over the weekends. I think it doubled since last year, and I have half as much time to do my homework. It has shown on my grades. The classes got harder.

why is school important to you?

"School is important to me because of the willingness of the teachers that teach things or ideas to people who have no idea. School gives people a chance to go to places and meet people they wouldn't normally meet or see. School is full of ideas, hopes, dreams, and admirations. I just want to be there to see them come out. Hopefully, some of those things will happen when I'm around, maybe even come for me."

What is your biggest hope for your future?

My biggest hope for the future is that we don't have to solve everything with violence. So if I end up having kids, they will feel safe in this world.
-sophomore, Jacob Crafton-

In my future I plan to finish high school. When I'm 18. I want to get a job and go to college at the same time. I want to be a dentist, and save enough money to get married. When I retire, I want to get another job, like a teacher or substitute. I'd like this job because I like to help people learn.

What do you hope to be doing in 25 years?

I want to be the first female president of the United States.
-freshman, Loan Tran-

I want to be vice president to Loan Tran because there is nothing else I can really think of, except, always wanting to be a lumberjack.
-freshman, Denise Roberson-

I plan to be the president of a big company, living in a big nation with a lot of money because I'm on a path of world domination.
-freshman, Erik Huggins-

I plan on being in a band because I like to play guitar. I also plan on living on a lake somewhere with my 42 1/2 kids.

What was your favorite part of your freshman year?

I think my favorite part of my freshmen year was sports. I had a lot of fun playing volleyball and running track. Another fun part was messin' with the guys.
-freshman, Ruthanne Clark-

My favorite part of my freshman school year was the pep rally because it was the first time I saw all of my friends really clown.
-freshman, Ebonie Williams-

The favorite part of my freshman year would be marching band. I made many new friends and went to many new places. It was a lot of fun.
-freshman, Sarah Oliver-

My favorite part of my freshman year was the new environment. For the most part, I got along with all my fellow classmates. I also liked the spirit weeks, they were great.

What kind of things did you do to fit in this year?

I did things with people who shared similar interests as I did. I was involved in F.C.A. and the swim team.
-freshman, Chrissie Oliver-

I tried to make a lot of friends. I went around meeting people and acted the best I could in the halls, I didn't act childish. -freshman, Ebony Showes-

I joined a lot of clubs and sports teams. I also met different types of people.
-freshman, Josh Harrell-

In order to fit in, I joined and participated in spots such as soccer and track. Along with other things.

What is the stupidest excuse that a student has given you for not having their homework done?

"A student said that he'd set his bedroom on fire and all of his books, including his assignment had burned." -Richard Dayment-

"The student said that her speech outline and visual aids were put into her father's briefcase-He left early that day by plane for the west coast." -Thom Feit-

"A young lady told me she fell asleep in the back of her boyfriend's pickup truck and left her booksthere. When he drove to school the next morning all the paper blew out of the back of the truck. This was mote than I wanted to know." -Steve Comiskey-

"I once resieved a note from the president of the school board explaining that her daughter did no have her homework due to a case o temporary amnesia. Apparently, she had misjudged a fly ball at softbal practice and was hit on the head Though she was able to find her way home, still knew who she was, and recognized most familiar faces and landmarks, there was no memory whatsoever of that night' assignment." -Gary Roberts-

What do you remember from your high school life? Chances are that it isn't what a gerand phrase was, or what the steps in glycolysis were. If anything, you can recall that Warren lost the Winterfest game to Lawrence North by one point, and that Jessica Nagle was crowned homecoming queen. You remember what you want to remember, you remember the people and events that made your life.

Get tight on the Titans

Homecoming provided students with a week of fun activities and unusual contests to celebrate school spirit and get ready to get tight on the Titans

On Monday Oct. 6th spirit week began, but no one realized just how much chaos would engulf the school and overshadow the festivities. High emotion, both of triumphs and tribulations, filled the air making this year's homecoming unforgettable.

Monday kicked off the week with dress-up day, where students showed their spirit by dressing in their Sunday best. After school the classes competed against each other in a hall decoration contest. Seniors regained their title by edging out the sophomores.

Seventies day kept the emotions high on Tuesday. " I like spirit days. They not only got students involved but they got them involved while staying in school," said junior LuAnne Kramer. After school was the "Battle of the Biceps." Phaedra Smith defended her title by winning the girls portion for the second year in a row. Chris Price won for the boys competition, and Ben Hudelson won the most spirited award by wrestling in a banana suit.

Wednesday marked the middle of the week, but was definitely not a usual day at Warren. It was class color day and seniors wore gold, juniors wore silver, sophomores wore plaid and freshmen wore polka dots. After school was the annual Homleycoming contest where male contestants dressed up as women, for little more than a

Spirit week brought students a whole new look

Juniors Elita Lopez, Keith Utter, and Bernita Prater pose for Class Color Day on Wednesday. The seniors wore gold while the juniors wore silver, the sophomores wearing plaid, and the freshman wearing polka-dots.

Senior Matt Dinn flashes back for '70's day in plaid polyester pants, white ribbed wide-collar shirt, brown suede sport-coat, his father's gold medallion - a true period piece and a plaid fedora that made the ensemble complete.

title and a tiara. Ben Hudelson, A.K.A. Aphrodite: the disco queen, dominated the show and took home the crown. Sugar and Spice (Aaron Williamson and Steve Pearson) came in a close second.

The mood was drastically different on Thursday. The morning brought news of a fatal accident that would eventually claim the lives of three students and critically injure a fourth. Because of the impact on victim's friends, counseling was available all day. Out of respect to the families and friends of the victims, Mr. Albano felt it appropriate to cancel the scheduled bonfire.

The school desperately tried to regain lost spirits on Friday. Anticipating the homecoming game, students showed their school spirit by dressing in black and gold. After school was Homefest and the big game against Tech High School. By night's end the Warriors were victorious, winning 48-8.

A week of festivities and of mourning ended, and the students and staff tried to return to normal. However this Homecoming was much more than a game and a queen and king, more than one obstacle was overcome, more than one heart was broken.

Senior Ben Hudelson AKA Aphrodite: the disco queen, primps for homleycoming. The contest attracted almost 700 people.

where did you meet your friends at school?

Before school, after school, and even during, everyone had their own places where they met to talk with their friends. Where was yours? Did you make it a routine like your class schedule? Or was it just wherever and whenever? Whether it was in the commons, the old foyer, or just by your locker, hanging out with friends was a priority in every student's day. by Chad Smothers

What did you enjoy about... Winterfest week

Scott McGowan grade 10 Elizabeth Jay grade 9

" During Winterfest week I enjoyed Lip Sync. I had fun getting up on stage and I enjoyed watching the other groups from behind stage. The thing I liked most about Lip Sync was the friendships my group, "Flashback" made."

"I enjoyed the game and the Lip Sync contest. I like the whole Winterfest celebration, it's the one time when the school joins together and looks stupid for a week besides Homecoming week."

John Sponsel grade 11

" I enjoyed the pep rally because I got to ride on the float in the little Warrior outfit. What made the pep rally the best was that the junior class officers gave a check for $150 to the Special Education Department."

Sarah Stanek grade 12

" I enjoyed the cheery atmosphere at school during Winterfest week. Activities like dress-up days and the class competitions added a bit of liveliness to what would have been mundane."

What did you enjoy about... Junior/Senior Prom

Dana Pennington grade12

" Prom night was filled with excitement. It was nice to see everyone dressed up. I especially loved dancing with all of my friends. I was also very honored to be crowned 1998 prom queen. It was like a dream come true."

Drew Phillips grade 12

"The thing I enjoyed most about prom is the way everybody went out of their way to make it a first class event. The music, the atmosphere, and the good company of my friends made prom a night that I will never forget."

Damien Patel grade 11

" I enjoyed the whole entire prom. One thing I liked was the music it was all really good. The atmosphere was also cool, the ballroom was an amazing place."

Tarah Brown grade 11

" I would have to say I enjoyed going with Alex Ehrgott to my junior prom. We went as friends and both had a lot of fun. Also, seeing everyone dressed-up was fun. I can't wait to see what next year will bring."

GOLD BRIGADE COLOR GUARD

Fall and winter competitions

by Mike Turner

So how important is the Color Guard to the Gold Brigade Marching Band? "The Color Guard acts as the visual aid to the band, so the performance is very vital," says senior member Angie McHaffey, who decided to join the group years ago by her friends' urging.

The visuals that the Color Guard provides for the band are rehearsed into routine. Four days out of a typical week you can see Angie and the rest of the Color Guard honing their skills to perfection. If you think this effort only occurs during the fall, think again. As competitions take the Gold Brigade away from the gridiron, the Color Guard follows as well. The group has been a key part in the band's success in contest. Still, it's the fan appreciation that urges on members such as McHaffey.

"The best aspect is when you just finished your best show and the crowd is cheering and all you can do is smile," she illustrates. "Color Guard has been a way of life for the past four years and I will miss it greatly."

Amanda Strange

Michelle Henning, Derek Sayler and Kyle Winings keep rhythm in the few moments they have before a marching band performance. The hours of training as a group as well as individual practice cannot be counted, but the drum corps quality resonates well.

Amelia Leyenberger and the rest of the flute section stand at attention as the Gold Brigade prepares to perform during the halftime of the Warren Central/Lawrence North football game. The marching band was an established presence every game.

Connection showchoir

It is the top choir. To be a part of it takes a lot of hard work and dedication. In other words, you have to be connected.

by Mike Turner

The Connection choir is considered the top choir in the school. Three hours of rehearsals, intense choreographing, not to mention a yearlong performance schedule distinguishes this group of singers as the top brass of Warren Central.

"Connection is the top choir," says senior Sarah Stanek in an enthusiastic tone, "the one most of us aim and hope for. When I was in Hi-Lites, I would watch the seniors in Connection in awe!"

That awe is what motivated Stanek to try out for the Connection choir her junior year. Needless to say, she was welcomed aboard. During her time with the choir, Stanek and the other talented members formed probably the greatest ensemble of the Connection choir in recent memory. "We got better scores than ever before," Stanek added. "Also, we tied for 14th in the state at organizational contest for the first time ever."

Although she says she will definitely participate in other choir groups after her high school tenure, Stanek shows no subtleness in her love for the Connection choir.

"Everyone did such a nice job this year," she concludes. "We accomplished our goal - we really were the best Connection Warren's ever had!"

What:

The day that all students wait for 12 years to happen...Commencement of their class. The ceremony as well as the handing out of diplomas.

When:

Wednesday May 27,1998. At 7:00 pm.

Who:

the members of the class of 1998 that had all of their required credits.

Where:

the ceremony took place at Market Square Arena in downtown Indianapolis.

Why:

to end the required schooling of the class of 1998. So that the class of 1998 could finally begin the rest of their real lives. Go on to college, start a carreer, or a family, whatever it was they now can do it.

Misc.:

Laura Spillman earned the honor of being 1998 Warren Central Valedictorian. Spillman was president of the National Honor Society as well as a member of Student Council. She took very advanced classes and maintained an almost perfect G.P.A.

What did you enjoy about... Graduation Day

Heather Decatur

" What I enjoyed most was that we got to start the rest of our lives. Also we got to see some of our friends for the last time. Everyone was so sad but at the same time very anxious about their upcoming adventures. I know that I will miss high school."

Josh Kimberlin

"I enjoyed the fact that I completed this chapter of my life and I get to go to college now. I also enjoyed the fact that I got a trip to Europe as my graduation gift."

Kelly Short

"I enjoyed graduation because that meant that I conquered my first goal in life. Because you only graduate once I enjoyed every second of it. Best of luck to everyone."

Jon Murphy

"I enjoyed graduation because I finally finished high school. I think graduating is a bigger step than most of us realized. We were finally free! Good luck class of '98."

What did you enjoy about... Senior week

April Bennett

"I really enjoyed the luncheon, it was a great time for everyone to join together and to remember old times. I really enjoyed the Lt. Governor's speech to our class. I also enjoyed hearing the senior sextet sing "Go the Distance".

Carl Van Rooy

"I enjoyed senior week, it was fun, except "Grease Day" needs to be changed back to "Junior High Day" but other than that it was great. I also had a lot of fun at the luncheon."

Luke Thayer

"I liked the fact that we, as seniors, were able to be set apart from all of the other classes. We got to be honored through an enjoyable process called "Senior Week"."

Autumn Jones

"I enjoyed the dress-up days as well as the luncheon. Although the food wasn't really all that good the atmosphere was really fun, and everyone had a great time."

Performing Arts

by Amanda Anderson

With approximately 120 students in Mr. Black's Drama I class and about 100 combined in other levels of Performing Arts, members continued to grow in 1998. Mr. Black said, "The numbers continue to grow slightly due to the course's reputation for fun and because everyone wants to be an actor." What people did not realize was that much behind the scenes has to be done to make a performance a success. Stage craft put over 5,280 hours of work into "The Miracle Worker" alone. All of the hard work paid off. Both of the big performances "The Miracle Worker" and "Will Roger's Follies" were successful and the smaller ones like "Hollywood Cafe" and the one acts were also.

STIAN DRAMA TEAM

tours Indy with the Color Green

Christian Drama Team was an acting group started by a former student of Warren, David Schultz. The team went to different churches around Indianapolis to perform their show "The Color Green". "The Color Green" contained 16 short skits.

The first 10 skits consisted of 1 to 2 minute comedy bits. One of the bits was about the famous "Got Milk?" commercial and another was a mock newscast. "It was a time for the audience to relax and have fun and laugh," said Schultz. The last six were more serious skits. "The second half was a time when we hoped the audience would open their hearts and minds to what God has to say," said Schultz.

The team consisted of eight students from schools around marion county. They were David Schultz, Jake Jacob, Ethan Opelt, Kyle Jennings, Nicholas Goff, Mary Beth, Juli Travalski and Kristen Leigh.

Tiffanie Stall and Lauren Miller perform for the kids at Lakeside. They Performed a fifties song turned Christmas song to the tune of "Lollypop". The majority of the performances were directed towards children.

Meghan Hankins performs in the fall play "The Miracle Worker". Hankins not only performed in the play, but she also took the drama class. Many students that were in productions took the class also.

Hollywood Cafe

was a unique event where students could drink coffee and watch live drama performed by their peers.

"Hollywood Cafe" was a Drama III class project, previously known as "Coffeehouse Theater", where students had to perform rehearsed plays in a "coffeehouse" that was set up in the studio theater. The 20 actors and actresses performed two plays They were "Dolls" by Jerome McDonough and "This is a Test" by Stephen Gregg.

Thespian society members dressed as famous characters, hence the name change and served coffee to the audience. They charged one dollar for admission and the coffee that they served. Approximately 160 people went to each performance December 9th, 1997 and December 11th, 1997, both at 7 P.M.

"I went to (Hollywood Cafe) and I loved it, the waiters and waitresses were really dressed up and the acting was wonderful," said junior Rachel Beck. The aim of the atmosphere was to be fun and casual commented drama students. The students and workers felt like the event was very successful, they raised approximately $160 to go towards a pizza party for the cast and the "Funkytown" disco party they had later in the year.

Drama III teacher Mrs. Reed concluded by saying," Each evening was a huge success. I think everyone had a great time, not only the audience but the cast and the waiters and waitresses as well."

BIGGER is better

As the biggest student council in the nation, the Warren Central Student Council left it's mark in the community as well as in the school. The 287 members...

by Adam Schildmeier worked on projects helping a number of different charities including the National Kidney Foundation, the American Cancer Society, and Riley Children's Hospital. For example , they raised $634 for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation selling paper pumpkins . Some school activities included helping out at events such as the Pep Session, the Homelycoming Queen contest, Lip Sync, and the Battle of the Biceps

"I really like the fact that there are numerous opportunities to get involved such as the children's Christmas party and the faculty breakfast"- senior Erin Mallory.

Joining student council has a number of benefits. Becoming a member can help a person build their leadership skills, improve their self-esteem, and improve the community.

"It's one of the most diverse clubs in Warren and is a great way to get involved in school"- sophomore Dustin Cathcart

Leigh Ann Webb

Homecoming

Jessica Nagle, the historian for Student Council, is crowned Homecoming Queen by Dana Pennington, the Student Council president. Student Council runs and organizes many different social activities during the year. Everything that happens during Homecoming Week is thought up by the students, not teachers like some schools. What would the school do without Student Council? Who knows? We'd probably get stuck at home doing nothing.

Christmas Party

Junior Megan Hunter assists a child looking for her present during the annual Christmas Party helping underpriviledged children, sponsored by Student Council. The community benefits from events like this, the Canned Food Drive, and serving lunch to the homeless at Wheeler Mission. Also, SC members help the community by selling cardboard hearts and pumpkins for $1. All the money goes directly to the foundation or society that it supports.

A number of Student Council students attempt to make a pyramid. They were demonstrating their capability of teamwork, which is the only way to accomplish this, because a team is only as strong as its weakest link.

With the possibility of saving someone's life, senior Tim Helfrich gives a pint of his blood to the Central Indiana Regional Blood Center. The Blood Drive had an outstanding outcome this year with 165 students donating blood.

It is really something to have completed almost two decades of your life, and to look back over these years and realize all the joy and pleasure that you have brought to your mother and me: the grand association with your sister, your accomplishments and realizations, your friends, your experiences, and progress along life's highway.

I am proud of you, son, and look into the augury of the past and see a glorious future. Deep in your mother's and my heart lie unspoken hopes and ambitions for you, an abiding love and understanding, and the knowledge that the success of our lives will be written in your deeds.

Hey Nicci,
When did you grow up into this marvelously, intelligent young woman? I can notice how you are presenting your directions, eyes set on your goals, gearing up for life's front door. Be confident in your decision-making and be compassionate to all creatures great and small. Steer your roadway positively and navigate troubled waters with the help of the Almighty and saints. I know that it was just yesterday that I held this tiny baby girl in my arms! Reassure yourself that your family is always here for you. Celebrate this graduation, one of many to follow and reflect on the joys of childhood that brought you here.

800 copies of the 61st volume of the yearbook were printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks at the cost to students of $40 each. Mrs. Cathy Wolfe served as the Herff Jones representative and Lori Davis was the in-plant consultant. Mrs. Alison Baldwin was the yearbook advisor and Mr. Mark Haab was the Publications Director. The book was printed on 100 lb. bordeaux paper. All photos were taken and developed in Warren Central's darkroom by the staff photographers, or taken and developed by Prestige Portraits. All layouts were created on Pagemaker 6.5 software.

Being a young staff, we didn't know where to begin, but the brainstorming finally worked. We came up with the idea that our age group is the "NOW" generation because of the fast pace of our society. The GENERATIONEXT ads from Pepsi helped our minds get rolling. After flipping through my calendar Great Motivations I came up with the whole theme of getting our generation moving in the right direction. The font styles and design ideas came from a watch magazine that was borrowed from Mr. Mark Haab.

I would like to thank everyone on staff for all their hard work and dedication. Thank you so much.

The year finally came to an end and now one more year of your life has passed and a brand new door to the future has opened. You began a new journey; you spread your wings and flew. Hopefully, you reached for the stars and didn't quit when you reached them. So, where has this new path led you or where

Being the last class to graduate from Market Square Arena and the first freshmen class to attend Warren Central, the class of 1998 had a big challenge ahead of the them. They struggled through and succeeded, earning more than two million dollars in scholarships.

Prestige

Amanda Strange

"We grow great by dreams. All big men are dreamers. They see things in the soft haze of a spring day or in the red fire of a long winter's evening. Some of us let these great dreams die, but others nourish and protect them; nurse them through bad days till they bring them to the sunshine and light which comes always to those who sincerely hope that their dreams will come true."
